

Business policy

The management has summarised the basic principles of our business policy:

We do our utmost to fulfil requirements and expectations.

For us the requirements and expectations of our customers and suppliers take centre stage, and we orient our processes consistently and reliably accordingly. We comply with customer specifications. We meet supplier obligations on time. We are committed to constantly improving the effectiveness of management. We are a dynamic technical supplier providing Swiss quality.

We strive for cooperation based on partnership.

Short-term success is not our strategy, we strive for long-term and sustainable growth with consistently high quality. We make suggestions for improvements in order to support our customers as well as we possibly can. Our suppliers are very important and we involve them closely in the procurement process. We visit customers and suppliers annually to achieve mutual further development.

The required quality must be complied with.

We do our utmost to meet the quality requirements of our customers. We have the best technologies for unusual customer solutions thanks to state-of-the-art and integral machinery and plant equipment. But mistakes can still happen. We encourage a constructive error culture at all levels to strengthen our employees' collective problem-solving competence and ability to act.

Our employees are our most valuable asset.

We encourage our employees to take responsibility and to undergo training. We involve employees in our business decisions, thereby developing entrepreneurial and collective thinking and action. The application, will and expertise at maxmechanik today is crucial for the business success of tomorrow.

We protect the environment and comply with directives.

We are aware of our responsibility with regard to environmental issues when dealing with resources and other stakeholders to whom we are answerable. We therefore use resources sparingly and dispose of them responsibly. We take environmental issues into consideration in all our decision-making. Consequently we are mindful of protection and safety at work. We are committed to constantly improving the OHS management system and to complying with the applicable statutory regulations. We take care that the operating environment is one in which risk is minimised. We train our employees periodically, so as to prevent accidents and malfunctions.
